

Next Phase of FBI technology: Iris Scans, Gait and Scent Detection

4-10-2011

For two years, some of the street cops there have been carrying a handheld device that instantly scans fingerprints and sends them to an FBI database in Clarksburg, W.Va., that contains 2 million prints belonging to terrorists, sex offenders and criminals with outstanding warrants..... Read More Here

WVU Partners for Biometric Research

4-13-2011

Students can help to further this research by donating their data and helping to further identification research so they are more effective. Biometrics is the study of unique human traits that could be used by the FBI to identify individuals in groups are under surveillance.....

Read More Here

Global Biometric Market All Set to Expand During 2011-2014

4-3-2011

With rapid adoption of biometric technology in government organizations and financial institutions, the sector is set to witness a CAGR of around 23% during 2011-2014..... Read More Here

Five New Technologies that will Change the World (and win at Jeopardy!)

4-12-2011

Five forms of new technology that can change the world: From the computer that beats humans on "Jeopardy!" to cellphone apps for African pick-and-hoe farmers, to satellites that spy on human rights abusers..... Read More Here

ADI Time Joins Forces with Ingersoll Rand Security Technologies

4-13-2011

ADI Time, a leading developer of cloud computing time and attendance management software-as-a-service (SaaS) for small- to mid-sized businesses and divisions of large enterprises, has established a partnership with Ingersoll Rand Security Technologies..... Read More Here

“Biometrics and Security in Global Perspective” is the conference that will be held in Washington on May 5th & 6th

4-19-2011

Organized by the Centre for Policy on Emerging Technologies , this event is part of the RISE project (Rising pan-European and International Awareness on Biometrics and Security Ethics, a task 2 initiative sponsored by the Directorate European Research Area of the European Commission that aims to contribute to create a common strategic vision on responsible biometric innovation among the main international players..... Read More Here